Written Activities are considered late and will no longer be accepted for a grade 2 days after the scheduled due date below. Those received after 11:00 p.m. of the due date, but within 2 days of the due date will automatically receive a 2 point deduction after being graded.

Written Activities will not be accepted for points on the Canvas site 48 hours after the due date. The Canvas site logs the time and date of each assignment submission.

Include the following heading on each typed Written Activity:

Your name & email address

Art Appreciation

Date, Module #, Activity #

Save your written assignments as follows: your last name_module#_activity#

EXAMPLE:(zyzda_module1_activity2)

It is important that you clearly identify yourself and the course, as I teach multiple classes.

All Written Activities must be submitted digitally through the listed assignment on the Canvas site.

1. Create a Word document (rtf, pdf, or open office document)
2. Type the answers in your own words(including the question)
3. Click "Submit Assignment" to the right of the written assignment, scroll down and attach your document by clicking on "Browse."

4. Be sure to click the "Submit Assignment" button to submit the assignment.

 Emailed written activity submissions will not be accepted.

Written Activity requirements:

1. DOUBLE SPACED, AT 12 POINT FONT SIZE, Times New Roman font or similar.
2. Use complete sentences and paragraphs to answer the questions.
3. Your assignment answers should be academic, analytical, and as open-minded as possible. Use an informed opinion instead of personal biases to achieve success. Visual evidence from the art works will help to support concepts. Write descriptions of what You see in the art to exhibit a full understanding.
4. Include the question before each answer. (Download the assignment document on Canvas and type directly after the questions.)
5. When writing, familiarize yourself with art terminology, use the text glossary and keep a dictionary handy. Remember that the Companion Website for the text is a great resource.
6. When writing your answers to the questions, it is expected that the words submitted are your own thoughts. If you use someone else's words or thoughts, you must cite the sources. Plagiarism is not acceptable. Answering the questions using only other sources is not acceptable. Regurgitation of the text or other sources, without an attempt to analyze and synthesize information is not acceptable. If you read the text, view the videos and use Companion Website, you should be able to come up with your own perceptions by thinking through the questions. Zero points will be earned if a student plagiarizes the assignment submitted. Please review the Student Handbook for consequences to plagiarism. It is a serious academic issue. Here is an excellent resource to avoid plagiarism: <http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/589/01/>
7. Use Visual Examples
To use an example in your writing, name the work, medium, artist and any other appropriate information necessary.
Always over-describe the work of art, when making statements. The art is the visual record, so use it to support your statements. Describe what may seem obvious, in terms of line, shape, color, texture, etc. Observational skills are useful in many fields, so this is a great chance to improve them. Use this resource to hone your writing skills. Pay close attention to the Expository Essay, the Descriptive Essay, and the Argumentative Essay <http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/685/01/>.

Assignments are submitted to an anti-plagiarism software that detects copying of statements, phrases, etc. from published sources and other students' papers.

Discussion Specifics

You will be required to contribute to discussions for each Module. Discussions are due on the due date and DO NOT have a two day grace period as the essays do. The Discussion link on Canvas will be a format for intelligent conversations concerning topics from videos and text information. For each topic, you are required to add to the conversation with substantive, original comments and questions. Each discussion forum is part of the Modules. It is a requirement to treat everyone with respect, and to keep the conversation at an academic, intelligent level. Differing opinions are welcome; however, back up your statements with solid support and remain respectful at all times. And again, use your own words, your own visual descriptions and complete sentences.

There will be a set of questions posed, and you will answer those questions by Wednesday (the due date). Then over the next two days, you will complete the discussion by commenting/asking questions on other students' posts.

General Rubric for Discussions

Excellent Quality= Each question is answered fully, showing an effort beyond the general requirements, and not with a "yes" or "no" response. The writer uses his/her own words to answer the questions. The writer uses specific descriptions and visual evidence to support the statements. The writer exhibits a full understanding of the topic, and writes in complete sentences. The post is added by the due date. The writer responds with a comment or question to at least one class member's post.

Average Quality= Each question is answered generally, but not with merely a "yes" or "no" response. The writer relies mainly on their own words, with some regurgitation from the text or video. The writer uses general descriptions, and some visual evidence to support the statements. The writer exhibits a general, surface understanding of the topic, and writes in complete sentences. The post is added by the due date.

Poor Quality= All questions were not addressed. The writer answered with some "yes" and "no" responses. The writer relies on the text's words and the statements in the video, without furthering the discussion. The writer does not use description or visual evidence to support the statements. The writer exhibits minimal to no understanding of the topic, and does not write in complete sentences. The post is added by the due date.

GRADING RUBRICS FOR MODULES:

Each Module will have a grading rubric specific to the main ideas and information from that Module. These will be on the Canvas site for your information.

VIDEOS: The videos will provide a broad view of art and artists throughout time. The videos are available for viewing online at http://www.learner.org/resources/series211.html#program_descriptions. There is no charge for the video access, but students may be required to create a login.

I will also have you look at individual, contemporary artists through the PBS series Art 21: Art in the Twenty-first Century. These are also available online at <http://www.pbs.org/art21/>

COMPANION WEBSITE: A website was created by Prentice Hall, the publisher of the text. The site offers reviews of the chapter objectives, links to artists and museums, quizzes and essay questions, a glossary, a timeline of Art History, image flashcards and links to images, and a link to the College Art Association, amongst other things. It is an excellent resource that I will refer to many times in the Announcements section on the Canvas site. Take advantage of this wonderful resource. www.prenhall.com/sayre

STUDENT TOOL KIT: At the beginning of your text, please read the Student Tool Kit section (pages xxv-xxix). This provides some of the key basics to the elements of form, steps to thinking critically about art, and helpful guidelines when visiting museums.

RETRIEVING YOUR GRADES

Modules contain several written activities and discussions. Throughout the Module, I will give feedback on the discussions and the written activities, and then at the end of the Module, the work will be graded. Each Module is worth 100 points total. To retrieve your grades and comments, click on Grades on the left side of the Canvas Art Appreciation page. Find the Module and click on the Green Check Mark icon to see comments and details.

SPRING, 2013 ART APPRECIATION PRE-MODULE ACTIVITIES

NOTE: IF YOU HAVE TECHNICAL DIFFICULTIES WITH CANVAS, CONTACT THE HELP DESK TO RESOLVE THESE ISSUES. I DO NOT HAVE THE TECHNICAL EXPERTISE TO SOLVE CANVAS TECHNICAL PROBLEMS.

Before Module 1, during the first week- Pre-Module Intro Discussion:

2 points by Wednesday, January 23rd at noon. (This must be turned in to avoid being dropped from the class for Financial Aid Reporting)

1. Become familiar with the Canvas site. Review the menu options on the left, and check each one regularly to stay abreast of the class. Especially pay attention to the Announcements, as things can change. I will keep you updated on any changes or important information in the Announcements section. Also, look over the Resources in Modules. There is extremely important information and resources about writing academically, avoiding plagiarism, and this area includes some helpful documents and websites about art.

2. Since each student is given a CMC email address, the Canvas site automatically uses this email, so when I email the entire class, it will go to this email address. Check the email section in the syllabus to learn about your CMC email address. You can change this email in Canvas to your preferred email address. I recommend this, so that I may communicate with you easily. For assistance with this, please contact the Help Desk.

3. Read the Introduction and Student Tool Kit in the text to familiarize yourself with what you will be learning and the basic tools that should become habit to you. The elements of form are essential. They are the building blocks of looking at, analyzing, and discussing art. Additionally, the document, "Seven Steps to Thinking Critically about Art" is an excellent way to stay on track and keep yourself as open as possible to learning about all types of art. You may encounter art that you do not like or do not understand. In many cases, this is often because you have never been exposed to the full scope of the world of art.

Remember that this is an academic setting. Consider this course as you would any other academic course. Is it important that you like the Civil War in a history class in order to learn something about it? NO! Set your sights on learning something about what has existed and what currently exists in the field of art, rather than considering whether or not you would want to have the art works in your home. Art is not limited to decoration or entertainment, but is often a tool for activism, expression, frustration, awareness, joy, anger, and art works are sometimes the only tangible record of a particular time period, signaling the social, economic, and political climates of a place and time. And sometimes, they are pleasing to be around.

4. To practice in the Discussion link on Canvas, introduce yourself with a short, one paragraph biography about yourself. What are your interests and why are you taking this course? Do you have any prior experience in art, does art intimidate or confuse you? In the Module section of Canvas, find the Pre-Module discussion forum and click on it. Add a post or reply to my Pre-Module Introduction instructions. Add the Pre-Module discussion within the first week of class (by January 23rd).

Be certain that your contact information is current on Canvas and that your notifications are set. If you do not add your Pre-Lesson biography submission to the Discussion, I will assume that you do not intend to stay in the course, and will report you as a "No Show."
